Welcome!

We are here to offer you what promises to be our best and most memorable event yet.

All three days are packed with rousing speeches, exciting performances, thought-provoking roundtables, and discussions, exhibits and films. It is truly your chance to meet amazing people from all over the world who are striving to make the world a better place.

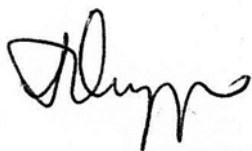

Hundreds are converging in Atlanta, with unique backgrounds and diverse experiences. But all with the same mindset: we are gathered here because we believe in a global community of compassion and care for one another. We are here because we believe all human beings deserve access to clean water, proper nutrition and health care, safe and healthy living environments, and the right to choose their leaders without reprisal.

We believe that collaboration and community are the keys to advancing any important cause that could improve people's lives in this nation and around the world.

This weekend is about being human. It is about transforming our frustrations with the current exclusionary systems into visions for improvement and plans for action. We encourage you to reach out, learn, make new friends, and forge new partnerships. You are to become an essential part of this exciting and historic humanitarian movement.

This summit is designed to provide something for everyone — whether you are just starting to explore these humanitarian issues, or are already a seasoned expert. We cannot wait to see you dive into the sessions, soak up the speeches and performances, and roll up your sleeves at a workshop. Meanwhile, make sure you save a little energy for just having fun.

Get ready to inspire and be inspired. A better world starts here!

Our Mission

The Global Health and Humanitarian Summit brings the local and global humanitarian community together for an educational and inspiring forum, fostering sustainable, world-changing humanitarian action.

The Summit strives to improve the delivery of humanitarian services, raise awareness of organizations committed to creating a better world and to inspiring the next generation of activists and volunteers.

Dr. Neil Shulman has written 17 books – including the book that inspired the smash-hit movie, “Doc Hollywood,” produced videos and feature movies, co-founded charitable organizations which brighten the lives of nursing home residents, arranged heart surgery for children who could not otherwise obtain it, and promoted understanding among children of different cultures. His stories about his life in medicine, standup comedy, and Hollywood are fascinating and wonderfully entertaining.

Dr. Arshed A. Quyyumi has been involved in clinical translational research in cardiovascular diseases for over 25 years. Dr. Quyyumi received his undergraduate degree in Pharmacology and medical degree from the University of London, England. In 2001 he was appointed Professor of Medicine in the Division of Cardiology at

Emory University School of Medicine, and in 2010 he was named Co-Director of the Emory Clinical Cardiovascular Research Institute (ECCRI). Since 2005, Dr. Quyyumi has been awarded more than $9 million in research funding. He serves on the Editorial Boards of several national journals, is a member on several Scientific Advisory Boards, and is a reviewer for the NIH-NHLBI

Study Sections. Dr. Quyyumi has authored more than 180 peer-reviewed publications and has been an invited speaker and session chair at numerous National and International scientific meetings and conferences.

The first Global Health and Humanitarian Summit took place April, 2010 at Emory University, Atlanta, Georgia. The brain child of Neil Shulman, MD, Associate Professor at Emory School of Medicine, the first Summit centered on health, and later expanded to humanitarianism in all segments of our society.

Dr. Shulman’s vision was to have an event that celebrated and raised awareness of the outstanding accomplishments of ordinary people doing great things here at home and worldwide. The Summit also presented a forum for people to network and share ideas with each other and encourage others to follow in its footsteps.

The Summit events were free for all who attended and for those who presented the work of their organizations. Neil envisioned a movement that would be replicated at universities and other institutions across the nation and worldwide.

Sonny Bandyopadhyay is an Emory ‘07 alum and an organizer of the Global Health & Humanitarian Summit. He is also the Co-Founder and Executive Director of Global HEED, a social entrepreneurship & 501(c)3 venture serving projects in Guatemala, Kenya, Nepal, Rwanda, and the US.

OPENING NIGHT

NBA Legend Dikembe Mutombo was born in the capital city of Kinshasa in the Democratic Republic of the Congo. Mutombo is the seventh of ten children born to Samuel and the late Biamba Marie Mutombo. He arrived in the United States in 1987 on an academic scholarship to attend Georgetown University in Washington, D.C. In his second year at Georgetown, Coach John Thompson invited the 7'2" Mutombo to try out for the university's renowned basketball team. After joining the team, Mutombo re-directed his pre-med ambitions and graduated from Georgetown with dual degrees in Linguistics and Diplomacy. He is fluent in nine languages, including five African languages. He played professional basketball for 18 years before retiring from the Houston Rockets in 2009. Giving back has always been a trademark of Mutombo ever since he entered the NBA in 1991.

As a former spokesman for CARE, the international relief agency, Mutombo visited Somali refugee camps in Northern Kenya in 1993 and traveled with NBA Commissioner David Stern and Georgetown colleagues Patrick Ewing and Alonzo Mourning to Cape Town and Johannesburg.

In 1996, Mutombo paid for the Congo's women's basketball team's trip to Atlanta for the Summer Olympics games and also picked up the tab for the track team's uniforms and expenses. He is the first Youth Emissary for the United Nations Development Program (UNDP) and he also served on the Advisory Board for the Fogarty International Center at the National Institutes of Health. He presently serves on the boards of UNICEF, the National Constitution Center and Opportunity International. Mutombo is also a Global Ambassador for the Special Olympics.

Mrs. Naomi King is a beloved mother, grandmother, great grandmother, relative, friend, comfort, and bright light to those in her church and the communities she serves. Naomi King is the inspiration of the documentary project A. D. King: Brother to the Dreamer. She is an author and speaks out on important issues of the day.

Marlon Campbell

singer, actor, writer, director, producer, has nearly two decades of experience in the music industry. It's a wonder Marlon Campbell is still hungry. He has taken his hefty appetite and crossed over to the big screens with a quest to take Hollywood by storm. Campbell, a native of New Orleans, grew up in the same household as his famous playwright cousin, Tyler Perry, and Campbell's mother is characterized throughout Perry's plays.

Marlon, aka "Shy," got his start in the music industry in the late 80's, along with his trendsetting band Shy Shy & The C.R.I.M.E which garnered world notoriety. In 1989, Campbell tried out his acting chops by playing the character "Dwight" on the NBC After School Special, Crack. Campbell furthered his cross over into acting and made his debut in the live stage play for William Shakespeare's Macbeth.

"I always knew I would end up working in the movie industry and for years it was constantly tugging away at my heart. A little voice in my head kept telling me I had to make a transition from music to film. I knew it was time for me to go ahead and write my first script for theatrical release," said Campbell.

Campbell's first transition to film was a project to executive produce the reality show titled "Blaque In The House," which featured R&B artists T-Boz from the group TLC, along with platinum-selling trio BLAQUE.

Campbell's latest project is a new sitcom production entitled Momma and Me, which stars Bern Nadette Stanis (Thelma of 70s sitcom Good Times). The show promises to deliver a new slant to the traditional family sitcom.

The Marafie Foundation is a Kuwait-based family foundation that provides humanitarian aid to institutions and organizations around the world. The Foundation's objectives include constructing clinics, schools, community, and health centers among other community building projects.

Dr. Gregory McPherson is a successful composer, arranger, performer, conductor, and producer garnering a myriad of industry awards and endorsements with several of the industry's top recording artists, record labels, filmmakers, performers, and cinematic presentations.

He has been recently named Chancellor for the International Consortium of African University Systems throughout the continent, representing a coalition of Africa's leading teaching and research institutions globally, with the formation of its principal academic center here in Atlanta. In addition, Dr. McPherson will also serve as the principal liaison between all of these institutions and various teaching and research led entities globally.

Sauda (pronounced Sah-OOH-dah) is a singer/songwriter/composer with a rich, soul-infused blend of jazz and pop sounds.

Her life journey has taken her to two continents. Born in Portland, Oregon, she grew up in Liberia, West Africa, returning to complete high school in the U.S. She graduated from North Carolina A&T State University in Greensboro with a degree in Psychology. Sauda has a second CD in the works and performs regularly around the Metro Atlanta area.

Emily Ashcroft is a transgender person who first discovered her feminine side at the age of five, and has been living a dual gender role ever since. Having dealt with almost every possible situation that can be faced in life, both good and bad, she has a unique perspective on what it takes to accept oneself, be accepted by others, and become a humanitarian. She is an accomplished author and frequent speaker to groups seeking to develop a more humanitarian understanding and approach to life, including: college classes, businesses, and conferences. She developed and led the 'Helping Humans Get Along with Humans' session at the 2012 GHHS, bringing together a diverse group of 28 speakers from 12 countries addressing current humanitarian issues and concerns around the world.

No Strings Attached (NSA) is Emory's all-male cappella group. Besides having a large concert culminating at the end of each semester open, NSA is asked to perform at many Emory events for alumni and students, and have been on six concert tours, including most recently a tour to Rome, Italy in March 2012 and Barcelona and Paris in March of 2010. They have performed at many notable Emory University events, as well as at Atlanta Braves, Atlanta Hawks, and Atlanta Falcons games; at the legendary Fox Theatre; and for His Holiness the Dalai Lama, President Bill Clinton, Claes Nobel, Kevin Nealon, Jerry Springer, Maya Angelou, Hank Aaron, Ted Turner, Georgia Governor Sonny Perdue, and others. NSA has released eight albums.

Sam Stephens joined the Global Soap Project as Executive Director in February 2012. The GLOBAL SOAP PROJECT receives partially-used soap from over 1,100 hotels across North America, recycles it into new bars of soap, and distributes them to disaster victims, refugees, and children and mothers living in extreme poverty.

Before the GLOBAL SOAP PROJECT, he worked for several years at the consulting firm Transformation Force International, serving as a strategic planning and development consultant to nonprofit organizations around the world. During that time, he also served as an Adjunct Professor of Management at Virginia Tech.

Mr. Stephens has an MBA in International Management and is also a licensed pilot. He's had the privilege of serving on boards of directors for more than a dozen nonprofit organizations, and has worked and traveled extensively in more than 50 countries worldwide.

Tyeshia Thomas was born in London, England where she spent most of her childhood years with her mother and father. She studied at the University of Northeast London in Islington. After college she realized she needed a change and came to Atlanta for a three-week holiday and fell in love. She fell in love with the greenery, the land space but most of all the southern hospitality.

Being in Georgia has been an exciting ten years. I have had many great opportunities especially being involved with Watering Oasis and the extensive amount of selfless work they do for others. I look forward to a long and wonderful journey with all the humanitarians I have met thus far, working together for a better and brighter future.

Brand-Smiff

has been stated to be one of the most versatile musicians in music. From the smooth slow sound to the powerful "food for thought" approach, he believes that God has blessed him with a talent and for that, he feels the need to create music that will bring people up and never back.

Dr. Sheldon B. Cohen

graduated from the Medical College of Georgia in 1951 and completed his Fellowship at Tulane University Hospital and Clinics. He is Board Certified in Forensic Psychiatry and an ardent conservationist. He is often heard speaking out about the importance of not wasting water and littering our Earth with plastic bottles.

The core organizers of this year's summit would like to express our deepest gratitude to:

Dr. James Wagner for his continued support, encouragement and dedication in enhancing diversity at Emory University by sponsoring the Global Health and Humanitarian Summit. The fact that Emory has continuously hosted this event for the past four years is a testimony to Dr. Wagner's commitment to bringing awareness of Global Health and Humanitarian issues to the community.

Dr. John Eley for his generous contribution of the James B. Williams Medical Education Building to be used as the center stage for the Global Health and Humanitarian Summit's message. Dr. Eley's continued approval of this event highlights his institution's dedication in providing a diverse learning environment to future medical professionals.
